VOLUME XXXVIII NO. 101.

STANFORD, LINCOLN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1911

EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

BELOVED PHYSICIAN DIES AT PARKSVILLE.

Dr. W. A. Brown Succumbs to Grim
Reaper After Long Illness—
Well Known in Stanford.

The news reached here Wednesday morning of the death at Parksville of Dr. W. A. Brown, one of the most prominent citizens of the county of Boyle, and one of the oldest practitioners in the state. He had suffered for years with a throat trouble and had sought relief in several climates and through some of the most noted physicians in the United States. Last winter he and his good wife who survives him, spent several months in Orlando, Fla., and he left that city feeling somewhat improved. But the benefit was of short duration and he has been in a critical condition since early fall.

Dr. Brown was a most successful practitioner and for nearly a half century he answered calls from the poor and rich alike. In fact his goodness to the poor gave him the name of the poor man's doctor, for it mattered not how dark the night nor how long the road he never failed to answer the call of the poor and unfortunate.

Dr. Brown is survived by the wife referred to above and the following children: Mr. J. H. Brown of Parksville, and Mesdames A. B. Hamble, of Seaman, O., J. Henry Hamble, of Junction City, and John Hays, of Boyle county. He was nearly seventy years of age and was a citizen of whom any community had a right to be proud. He was an uncle of Dr. E. J. Brown, of this city, who was devoted to him.

Dr. Brown was a man of affairs, a pleasing conversationalist and a high-toned gentleman. Standing nearly six feet four inches, he was a typical Kentuckian in appearance and in his breast there beat as kind a heart as mortal man ever knew. Peace to the ashes of the grand old gentleman and may his good deeds on earth be rewarded by life eternal in the land beyond the skies. The funeral services took place at Parksville yesterday morning after which all that was mortal of the good husband, indulgent father and model citizen was laid to rest. A great crowd attended the funeral exercises, many coming from this county to pay their respects to the man whom to know was to admire.

Stanley McIntosh, who has been cashier of the Waynesburg Deposit Bank since the organization of that institution several years ago, has tendered his resignation to take effect January 1st. The Waynesburg bank is progressing nicely and no little of the credit is due Mr. McIntosh who has labored faithfully for the upbuilding of the concern. Mr. McIntosh will go to some place in Ohio and take the position of cashier in a big bank. The I. J. wishes him much success in his new field of labor and with the rest of his friends regret that he has seen fit to leave Lincoln county.

OLD STANFORD COLLEGE

Is Property of County Board of Education, Says Higher Court.

The Court of Appeals last week affirmed the judgment of the Lincoln Circuit Court in the suit involving the disposition of the old College property on Main street. The lower court held that the college became the property of the County High School purposes and it is this judgment which the high court upholds.

For the past several years the Stanford City Schools have been using the college for the primary grades. Under the decision of the court, some new arrangements will probably be made between the city board of education and the county board when the present term work comes to an end.

The ladies of the Baptist church will give a bazaar and exchange at the postoffice, this Friday, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. They will have on sale all sorts of fancy work, good things to eat and other things suitable for Christmas presents. Call to see them.

LYNN— FIELDS

Popular Young Couple Are Made One By Rev. J. B. Jones

Henry Fields and Miss Catherine Lynn, two of the most popular young people of Lincoln, slipped off and were quietly married at the Baptist parsonage by Rev. J. B. Jones late Wednesday afternoon. The wedding was quite a surprise to their many friends, but not a big surprise, for they have been expecting the good news for some time but were not aware when it was coming. They were accompanied by Mr. George B. Hall and Miss Annie Woods, who heard the words said which made the twin one. Mr. Fields recently bought out the meat market of J. C. Lynn in Stanford. Before that he was a hustling young farmer, liked and respected by everyone and numbering his friends by his acquaintances. His bride is the charming daughter of Mrs. John Lynn, of the Somerset mine, and will make a splendid helpmate for him in every way. Their host of friends extend heartiest congratulations and good wishes.
